Teachers' Institute. -The regular annual institute for Kenn, bec county will commence to-day at the High School building, under the charge of Prof. Tenney and Mrs. Anna Randall Diehl. Prof. Tenney has achieved a high reputation in connection with the schools of New Hampshire and New York, while Mrs. Diehl is well known as teacher in the Oswego Normal School and the author of a standard work on Reading and Elecution. Their work thus far in this state in connection with the institutes establishes their lank as first-class educators." Of course our teachers will not fail to give a full and constant attendance. We learn that Mrs. Diehl will give public recitations and readings one evening of this week-free to all. Our exchanges speak yery highly of her. The institute will continue five days. Free return tickets over the Maine Central will be given to regular attendants.

Beath of a Venerable Printer.

We announce this morning the death of Mr. Gilman Smith, a practical printer, well known to the members of the craft in this and other States. Mr. Smith was born in Sanbornton, N. H., in 1597; was an apprentice in Wiscasset (Mr. Dorr still resides in this city); worked at the business in New York in the same office with Horace Greeley; worked at his trade also in Boston, Andorer and other places, and came to this city to reside permanently in 1836, where he has ever since heed. His brother, Wm. R. Smith, Esq., cashier of the Augusta Savings Bank, had just started "The Age," democrat ic newspaper, and Gilman became foreman of the office, holding the relation for about twenty years, the paper in the meantime pasing into the hands of several different propraetors. He was appointed mail agent by President Pierce, and after losing the office by a change of administration he became foreman of the book department of the Kennebec Journal, and held the place for two or thee years. He was the last publisher of "The -Age," which dred out during the rebellion. Since that time he has retired from active life and for a year or more has been in feeble health. He was able to be about until -ithm a fortright Mr Smith was one of the ploneers in the printing business, and learned his trade at a time when apprentices considered themselves under some obligations to their employers. He was a well educated and skilled workman; and especially compotent to have the charge of nice book work, - as one from the Elisworth American: It is not often that a legal argument is enlivened by a veritable bear story, but such was the case at the recent term of court in this county, in a case between the towns of Gouldsboro' and Franklin. The principal witness for the pris. was an old man of fourscore retained his mental vigor in a remarkable degree. The defts.' counsel sought to disparother sale in reply happily introduced this story, to show that the witness in his younger days possessed great pluck and powers of endurance: Some sixty years ago the witness, alore and unarmed, except with an ordinary jack-knife, encountered a bear. The man would not retreat, neither would the bear. For a few moments each looked deficatly at the other, and then the man advanced. His opponent did the same. They met, and on he instant when the bear opened his mouth to bite his autagonist, he thrust his naked hand into the bear's mouth, seized his tongue, and in spite of the iscerations of teeth and claws, held on, and with the other hand stabled the vital parts of the bear with his knife until he killed him. The scars and marks of the teeth were still visible on the hand and arm of the old witness and were notided by the jury. It is perhaps unnecessary to add that the verdict of the jury was given in favor of the teller of the bear story.

The Horse Direte. The Boston Journal of Saturday, gives the following statement of the way business is affected in that city by the horse 4'-u--; The full force of the columnty was felt by the public, when from store and workshop, clerks, seamstresses, mechanics and intorers sallied forth in quest of the evitoring conveyances, little dreaming perhaps of the d'aagreeable alternative wh'h awa'll at either to stay in the sheets all night or walk home. Thousands of people lived the elde walks, where they stood in the d. -- line rain waiting in vain for the approach of the fa-miliar lights of the cars of their rangerive routes. The various waiting root a in Bow-dom square, Cornbill and Tremont sticat, were crowded to excess, and hundreds of weary weather bound -- ortals stoud in gaiently under the old chae, ampiling to accept the situation. The few cars that arrived were instantly filled by unreasonable has an beings, who hung on as it were by their eyelids, rather than go home on foot. During the afternoon the cars were so overloaded that out of sympathy for the sick and juded borses the conductors refused to take an date passengers, a thing scarcely ever done before, while a sealong official connected aid, the Sa. ciety for the Prevention of Ci.zlty to Animais actually cleaned out a car in the horses of which were unable to das their load: 'Tis an ill wind, ele., and so the _! am roads' resped the benefit of the sq vosion of the horse cars. backman urged his reluctant steeds over the slippery pavements, but the principal thotoughfares were as quiet at seven o'clock as they usually are at midnight on Sunday. It is a well-known fact that theatres and concerts depend very largley upon the subtithan paironage, and this, as a matter of course, has been almost wholly cut off by the essened facilities of transit in the horse carr. The attendance at the several places of amusement last evening was much a affer than usual, although strong bills were everywhere offered. The malady presails among the trotting horses at the race course. Beacon and Mystie lafke, and the valuable horses belonging to Mr. Balch have taken the disease in a mild form. Physicians are among the sufferers, and Dr. Gregn, city physician, and his assistant are put to no little inconvenience in going beir rounds among the small-pox patients. eports are in circulation to the effect that the infectious nature of the disease is not confined to the horse sione, but is el-s timemitted to human beings. This seems by no means improbable, as there are several cases of sickness in this city and in New York which strongly resembles the disease. A writer in the New York Herald says that he found himself on Suday morning suffering from symptoms usually called catarrh, but which might be more properly called, in his case, semi-sente bronchitis-viz, cough, ex pectoration of a muco-purulent phicaus, soreness in the larger bronchial tubes, oneezing and a general feeling of debility. He auributed all these symptoms to the peculiar condition of the atmosphere the preceding Friday, which was a wet, warm, most d' ays a men was a wes, warm, most d'agust his days. It is not une avoyable to believe that it was on this day that the hours contracted the disease, which satra-weatly developed into influenza, catarrh or whatever else it may be called.
